

Each cow and calf is called a pair. The rancher usually identifies each cow-calf pair by giving them an ear tag with a number. The ear tag is like a person's earring. It tells the rancher which cows and calves belong together.